

OMBUDSPERSON
BRITISH COLUMBIA

FAIRNESS IN BC'S PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The Ombudsperson is investigating the circumstances in which BC's public K-12 schools are asking or telling students not to attend school. We will assess whether those practices are fair for all students, especially those with disabilities or diverse abilities who end up at home with little to no support or time with teachers and classmates.

We want to hear from you!

We invite everyone who works directly with students – including teachers, education assistants, principals, vice-principals, speech pathologists, occupational therapists, psychologists, teachers of the deaf and hard of hearing, physiotherapists, counsellors, nurses, and others – to share their experiences.

Your experiences are important to us.

Share your insight through our confidential online questionnaire. Your input will help us understand what is happening in schools across BC.

To participate, scan the
QR code or visit Fairness in BC's public schools

